PTL announces latest Client Director hire, with appointment of Dan Richards

PTL, the leading independent trustee and governance services provider, has announced the appointment of Dan Richards as a Client Director in its London office.

Richard Butcher, Managing Director at PTL, commented: “Dan is the second of the four new hires at Client Director level we announced we were looking for in November, and he joins us at a pivotal time. The demands on professional trustees are increasing, and PTL is committed to meeting these head on and raising governance standards across the industry. To meet our exacting standards and ambitious growth plans, we need talented, experienced, creative and energetic individuals, and someone of Dan’s calibre is a very welcome addition to the team.”

Dan Richards, Client Director, added: “PTL has clear plans for the future, a fantastic team of people, and a brilliant reputation in the market. As pensions continue to make headlines in the news, and pressure from the regulator increases, it is great to be part of a team which is helping secure members’ benefits through solid understanding, good governance, and practical decision making.”

Dan brings over a decade of pensions experience to PTL, having worked with both corporate and trustee clients on a diverse range of schemes, from less than £5 million to more than £15 billion. Dan is a qualified actuary and has previously worked at Deloitte, Mercer and, most recently, LCP.
